Dimensions: 9.7in. x 7.4in. x 0.1in.Excerpt: . . . and the affairs of the tenements and stores Uncle Peter had owned in her neighborhood. Ruth learned much about this property that she had never heard before. Uncle Peter had once collected his own rents-indeed, it was during only the last few years of his life that a clerk from Mr. Howbridges office had done the collecting. Uncle Peter had been in touch with his tenants. He had been a hard man to get repairs out of, so Mrs. Kranz said, but he had always treated the good tenants justly. With a record of ten years of steady rent paying behind her, Mrs. Kranz considered that she should be recognized and her complaint attended to. As she could get no satisfaction from the lawyers clerk (for Joe Maroni was a prompt paying tenant, too), she had determined to see the owners. These were the facts leading to the good ladys visit. Before she went away again Mrs. Kranz was much pacified, and openly an admirer of the Corner House girls. Ach! if I had madchens like you of my own yet! she said, as she descended the porch steps, on her departure. Agnes gazed after her more seriously than was her wont. She did not even laugh at Mrs. Kranz, as Ruth expected. And I believe shes an old dear at that, Ruth said, reflectively. Maybe we can get her to help those little Italian children-if we can once get their parents to clean them up. Well! breathed Agnes, finally. I wasnt thinking particularly about her-or of the Joe Maroni kids. I was just thinking that perhaps it is not always so nice to be rich, after...
