Monroe elected Corresponding Secretary. A Board of Trustees was elected, to hold in trust all property bequeathed or donated to the Church, not specified for any particular object. The bishops were permitted to allow preachers to remain on circuits and stations three years if the interest of the work require it. The bishops reported that the question of Lay Delegation had been presented to the preachers and people with the following results: Preachers in favor, 1,338; against, 3,069. Laymen in favor, 28,884; against, 47,855. A vote was then taken declaring that the Conference was ready to admit lay delegates to the councils of the Church as soon as the Church shall indicate such a desire. Slavery having been abolished by the issues of war, the Conference passed a rule prohibiting the buying or selling of slaves by any member of the Church.
